Director's Notes

I am happy to be working with the TGWG again after being away for over ten years. This is an amazing cast of veteran actors. I feel blessed that they all came out for this show! The play by Andrew Bergman takes place in Manhattan at the apartment of art dealers, Barbara and David Kahn. After a surprise visit from Barb's sister, Trudy, and her husband, Martin, things get turned upside down in their household. It seems they have dropped off Sophie (Barb and Trudy's mother) to stay for what could be a very long visit while they run off to college to save their daughter from her sexually promiscuous behavior. Meanwhile back at Barb and David's, Sophie has met David's dear friend and client, Maurice. Well, the outcome is not what anyone expected!

I'd like to thank my AD, Tom Stewart, for his help and support as well as Barb Mulligan for working hard as production manager, and of course to my sound and light techs and stage crew. Special thanks to John Austermann for set construction, and those who painted the set and my special paint projects. Also thanks to everyone who donated their time and/or personal items for this production. I believe you will all leave here today with a warmer heart and a smile on your face! Thanks for joining us today!
